Air Mail Service Held Up By Poor Visibility in B.C.

Winnipeg-Vancouver Section Commenced Tuesday But Fog Over Mountains Held Planes.

Overcast skies on Tuesday and Wednesday made it impossible for the mail planes of Trans-Canada Airways to complete their flights between Winnipeg and Vancouver. The westbound being grounded at Lethbridge, and the eastbound proceeding no further than H. P.

The opening of the service recalls the first efforts made locally to help in the development of aviation. A small field was made west of Coleman through the volunteer efforts of the Board of Trade, in which Forest Ranger Boulton took a leading part. Some years ago forestry planes from High River patrolled this section of the Rockies, and it was to provide an emergency landing field here that some citizens interested themselves.

With the subsequent development of a Trans-Canada mail service, Dominion officials decided on establishing an intermediate aerodrome here. The existing landing field was too small, therefore larger fields were surveyed, and a relief camp established. A big job was undertaken in clearing the site of boulders and rocks, besides the leveling and removal of thousands of tons of earth. Plans provide for a runway of 4,000 feet, 500 feet wide. The largest plane to use the field was that of Air Commodore T. Hollick-Kynyon, who in 1937 was held up here when, on a test flight over the Rockies, his plane was disabled and he spent ten days waiting for a new propeller. He was flying one of the type now being used in the regular mail service, having capacity for ten passengers.

It is also of interest to note that a brother of Dr. T. K. McLean was one of the aviation officials who decided on establishing an intermediate landing field here. He is superintendent of airways, and it was that first view of local interest in establishing a small field here that led to the federal government deciding on making permanent field capable of accommodating large planes if emergency landings were necessary. It has the highest altitude of any of the fields on the Trans-Canada Airways, being about 4,400 feet above sea level.

HOPES DIMINISH FOR FULFILLMENT OF S. C. PROMISES

Maybe the Social Credit government and the legislative members realize that their return at the next provincial election being improbable, they will get all they can while in office. The hope of dividends for all has gone, the legislative members an increase in members sessional indemnities, while relief appropriations are reduced. The record, when contrasted with the promises made in 1935, has not a single bright spot. Instead, taxation has been increased for all, interest on the small investors' savings has been cut in half, and slackers have been encouraged not to pay their debts.

PRESIDENT Winnipeg Board of Trade

Guest speaker at the annual meeting of Lethbridge Board of Trade last Friday, M. W. Cooke and H. T. Halliwell represented the Pass towns at the banquet and meeting.

C. E. STOCKDILL

The following appeal was decided on at a meeting of the vestry held on February 23, and is recommended to the prompt consideration and response by all Anglican church people:

To raise the amount of $600.00 required to pay the arrears of interest to the rector, Rev. A. S. Partington, a special appeal is being made to all Anglicans. These arrears have accumulated through lack of interest and support, yet the parish is obligated to pay this sum.

At a meeting of the vestry each member volunteered to take part in a general canvass of parishioners to raise as much as possible before Mr. Partington leaves for Creston, B.C., his new appointment, and to pay the balance in money. The amount of the amount owing is fully paid. It has been proposed that the equivalent employed parishioner order to be raised as much as possible before Mr. Partington leaves for Creston, B.C., his new appointment, and to pay the balance in money.

This appeal is therefore made to you, as a duty of the church, for it is only by the contributions of every member that the amount can be raised and the services be maintained.

FORMER COLEMAN LADY WRITES FROM "THE ISLAND"

40 Macleary St.,
Nanaimo, B.C.
Feb. 23, 1938.

Dear Mr. Halliwell:
Enclosed find order for $2.00 which I think is the correct amount for the year for the Coleman Journal, which I would like sent to the above address.

We are beginning to settle down here now and like the climate a lot more than the winter here. We often think of Coleman and wonder just how everything is, so it will be nice to get your paper each week and keep in touch with the home town.

We heard over the radio that Coleman had beaten Lethbridge in hockey and we were sure pleased.

It might interest you to know that we have snowdrops and primroses in the gardens and the pussywillows are out. Too. All the trees are in bud and everywhere you can see signs of spring.

Kindest Regards,
Mrs. JOHN H. HIRST.

THE LENTEN SEASON OPENED ON WEDNESDAY

Churches Will Hold Special Services Until Easter Dawn Bright and Fair.

Most small boys and girls remember the Lenten season chiefly because the day before Ash Wednesday is Shrove Tuesday, or "Pancake Day." This custom of tossing and eating pancakes originates in the dim and misty past, and there are some boys' schools in England where the custom still holds good of tossing pancakes on Shrove Tuesday.

In Canada they are known as flapjacks, and as a staple article of diet are well recommended, particularly with fried bacon. In England it is something of a ritual to observe pancake day.

During the next forty days all true believers will make sacrifices by giving up candies, cigarettes, going to the movies, drinking intoxicating liquors, cutting down on meat at meals, while others, in fact the majority, will likely never give a heed to the Lenten season, and life will go on just the same for the sinner as for the saint.

But the churches will remind all that this commemorates the season when Christ fasted for forty days and nights in the wilderness, and Wednesday night services will be held in the United church, when the Protestant ministers will give the sermons.

Town Council Holds Regular Meeting

Provincial Inspector's Report Approved That No Cows be Kept Within Town Limits—Petition for Grading Received.

The regular meeting of the council was held on Tuesday evening with all members present.

The minutes of the last regular meeting, the special meeting, and the cases statement for the month of February were adopted as read.

Mr. William Fraser appeared for the school board, asking permission of the council to enable the building of a stone wall. It was recommended that the council that a curved wall be built from the corner of the school rather than across the front of the building.

A health report was received from J. Butterfield, provincial health inspector, and it was unanimously decided that instructions contained therein concerning the keeping of cows on lots within the town limits be adhered to.

The secretary was authorized to purchase a chauffeur's license for Mr. Nikutik, truck driver for the town of Coleman.

Several applications were received for position of electrical inspector. S. Murdoch being appointed.

The license fee from the Calgary Kaituma Company was received and accepted.

A petition was received from residents of Seventh street regarding the grading of that street, and the matter was put into the hands of the Works and Property committee for investigation.

It was moved that the assessment of properties for last year be adopted for 1938.

A motion was passed that no penalties be placed on the arrears of taxes as at the 31st of December, 1937.

The following accounts were presented and passed for payment:

GENERAL ELECTRIC CONTEST

A greater public consciousness of the happiness, comfort and labor-saving made possible through the development of modern electrical appliances and equipment is the aim of the national $10,000 essay prize contest announced today by the Canadian General Electric Company Limited.

This simple contest, the announcement states, calls for no investment. Contestants are asked to secure of local forms on which to write, in a hundred words or less, why the electrical way of living appeals to them. These forms, giving detailed information on the subject, are obtainable from General Electric dealers, power companies and electrical contractors throughout Canada.

Commencing March 1st and continuing until April 16th, the contest is not regarded as a temporary sales promotion enterprise but as a definite educational effort. Contest officials express the hope that it will result in a true appreciation of life and living; that people will come to realize the vital role which electrical servants play in the home.

In a sixty-three prizes will be awarded, it is announced. The first prize is a certificate for $2,500 to be applied on the purchase of electrical merchandise. The second and third prizes are certificates for $1,000 and $500 respectively, while the balance of the prizes range in value from $250 to $50.

LOCAL AND GENERAL

The seven-month-old boy of Mr. and Mrs. Angelo Gentile has been very ill with pneumonia.

Miss Susan Wilson, accompanied by her mother, from North Fork, were visitors in town this week, guests of Mr. and Mrs. H. C. McBurney. Miss Wilson will spend a month visiting friends at Creston.

Mrs. Martha Olquist, mother of Mr. H. Franz, died in Lethbridge shortly after being struck by an automobile. She was 63 years of age and had resided in the city for some years.

Some more tradespeople have been held holding the bag through the sudden departure from town of an individual who also left his board and room bills unpaid. That's what you get for trusting people of that type.

Frank Celli, of Creston, breezed into the office on Tuesday morning, accompanied by Mrs. Celli. They had been visiting friends in the Pass towns. While here Frank renewed his annual subscription to The Journal, leaving a sum of good will and two good Canadian dollars. Some years ago they owned the Palm Confectionery in Coleman, later taking up residence on their fine ranch at Creston.

Old-Timer of Southern Alberta Well Known

His Birthplace Was in County Tipperary and Came to Canada in 1876.

Robert Patterson, 83-year-old Macleod rancher, and mountaineer, policeman from 1876 to 1880, was well-known to the Masonic fraternity in Southern Alberta. At district meetings he was a familiar and kindly figure, and despite advanced age, retained a smart appearance and took part in discussions with vigor and interest. He was a past grand master of the Masonic fraternity in Alberta. He is the last of the charter masters of Macleod. For lodge, and first came to Alberta in 1876 with the original Northwest Mounted Police. He was truly symbolic of the early days of the west. Representatives from Summit Lodge A.F. & A.M. attending the funeral in Macleod this afternoon are Maurice W. Cooke, Albert F. Short and R. F. Barnes.

FEATHERED VISITORS PROVIDE INTERESTING STUDY

Mrs. M. Clifford and her daughter, Mrs. Harry Gardner, are authorities on the wild birds that frequent these parts. List birds they have seen, and a little more secluded, than the rest of the townsite, their garden is a haven for all kinds of migratory birds, and they tell of many interesting incidents in their observations. The friendly and familiar nutcracker, large birds have a secret, similar to that of a crow, are so tame that they will eat from their hands, and they just stand down when they appear on the doorstep with food. At one time a leaky pipe in the winter caused pool of water at the rear of their house, and many birds would come daily to drink. On one occasion a robin froze its feet, and for two weeks remained huddled under the door, covering its feet as much as possible with its feathers.

It is surprising the varieties of birds that come and go, and their visits during their migratory flights provide a great deal of interest. With a little study, the bird world of the varieties are easily distinguished.

Hockey Season Comes To A Close

The hockey season has drawn to a close as far as Coleman fans are concerned and with the coming of mild weather, the season is over.

Efforts were made to have Olds' Elks play Canadians here on Thursday (to-night) but the northerners refused. Elks played Lethbridge last night and, providing ice remains in the arena, will Saturday evening, a return game will be played. The game is being billed as a test of relative length between the Big Six league and the Kootenays.

A meeting of the Canadians' executive will be held on Sunday to set by date of the banquet and also the date of the annual general meeting. The executive having previously decided to have the meeting open to the hockey fans, without having to pay a dollar for the banquet in order to be present.

McMann and Ainsworth have stated they will remain in Coleman for the summer and will again do a Canadian uniform next season. Pat Hill, hockey referee, will return to Calgary. Schneepf will head for other pastures.

The annual meeting will be held at an early date for it is the intention of the present executive, should they be re-elected to office, to work fast and do their utmost to bring in good players before other teams have had time to contact them.

OLD FASHIONED REVIVAL CAMPAIGN AT NAZARENE MISSION

Rev. Edward Lawlor, of Shackleton, Saskatchewan, who is a commissioned evangelist of the Church of the Nazarene, will arrive in Coleman, Saturday, March 5, and commence a series of special meetings in the Nazarene Mission on Main Street, west. He is now engaged in a revival campaign in the Red Deer Nazarene church.

Rev. Lawlor has conducted evangelistic services throughout Canada, and also in some states of the Union, with great success. He is the president of the young people's work of the church for Manitoba and Saskatchewan, and has been in service in Alaska. This experience is of great help to him in his work as evangelist.

Rev. Lawlor is a very stirring, dramatic, enthusiastic, youthful evangelist, and his services are constantly in demand.

The local missionaries, Misses Moonshian and Berglund, are very anxious that as many friends as possible will come out to hear this youthful evangelist during his stay in Coleman.

He has some very interesting subjects to speak from, and you will enjoy all his interesting talks from the gospel. On Sunday, March 6, he will speak on the following subjects: 11 a.m.—Fall Church; 2.30 p.m.—What Are You Looking For?

On Monday afternoon at 3.30, he will address the student body of the local high school.

Come and bring your friends. Services will be held every evening at 7.30 p.m., except on Saturday evenings, until March 23.

THE JOURNAL INTERESTS THEM

The Journal has subscribers who since 1921, when it was re-established, formerly operating under the name of The Bulletin, have regularly paid as each year rolled on. Mrs. Davies, of 124 Montrose, widow of the late D. Davies, former mine superintendent at International mine, sends the Journal this week. She has subscribed for over ten years, and while living here was a regular reader. There are many mail subscribers who, following their removal to other parts, kept up their connection with Coleman through the medium of The Journal.

Coleman Stores Offer Good Values Week-End Buying

Journal Advertisers Practice What They Preach in Effort to Develop Home Business.

Buyers of groceries, of which more purchases are made than any other class of goods in the average household, are kept well informed every pay-day by the specials advertised in this paper.

Sometimes storekeepers complain of mail-order competition, and it is a factor to be reckoned with, particularly in such lines as clothing, furniture and non-perishable goods, but groceries are not so easily obtained, therefore the customer is always on the lookout in the columns of The Journal for the most attractive lists of goods.

In order to keep before the public the merits of Coleman stores, the list of advertisers in this issue is given; and buyers are recommended to purchase from them, for they show by their loyalty to their hometown newspaper, they are worthy of your business.

Index of Advertisers in This Issue
Coleman Cash Grocery.
Coleman Co-operative Store.
Coleman Hardware Co.
Pattinson's Hardware.
H. C. McBurney, druggist.
E. Ledue, Grocery.
Zak's Meat Market.
Frank Aboussey, Clothing.
Charles Nicholas, Clothing.
J. M. Chalmers, Jeweler.

Attention is also directed to the various business houses advertising in The Directory column. By their advertising support, they help to make possible the publication of this paper. The Journal endeavors to publish a weekly newspaper worthy of the town, but it must have co-operation of advertisers as well as subscribers in order to do so.

It is our ambition to make The Journal at all times as fully representative as possible of the town and its business houses. It is the Journal which is the mirror of community life. Every store should see that every issue has something of interest to the buying public. Advertising in this paper also gives prestige to local stores, because it goes forth in attractive appearance easy to read, pleasing to the eye and having that stamp of quality which creates an inducement to buy.

Conservation and Reforestation

"Twenty-five per cent. of land should be forest, if water supply is to be preserved, purified and regulated."

The foregoing is an extract from a lengthy article in a recent issue of Toronto Saturday Night penned by E. Burnham Wylie, in a strong appeal for a vigorous national policy for conservation of the existing timber wealth of the country and for a permanent and progressive policy of reforestation to replace depleted reserves.

While the writer makes his comment particularly applicable to conditions in Ontario and the Maritime provinces, the subject is of more than passing interest and importance to Western Canada in view of the effect of denudation of timber upon the future of agriculture.

An Important Influence

It is true that the ability of stands of forest to draw precipitation is a controversial topic among experts but there is no gainsaying the statement that forests can and do exert an important influence in conserving moisture that actually falls to the benefit of field crops, livestock and every other branch of the agricultural industry. Practical farmers have observed time and again that snow which has been held by trees and even fences has in dry years spelled the difference between a good crop and a poor one, or between a fair crop and none at all within the area influenced by such trees or fences. Similarly, it should be generally understood by this time, that even a few trees exert an influence on the retention of summer moisture within a limited contiguous area, to say nothing of their value in tempering high winds neighboring crops, for the shelter of livestock, prevention of soil erosion, and insurance of a permanent supply of timber for fuel, construction and other industrial purposes.

All of these and other aspects of the question of conservation of forest resources and reforestation are dealt with in Mr. Wylie's enlightening contribution and he quotes freely Canadian and United States authorities in support of his general contention that "we know to-day that agriculture is rightfully handicapped as forests are stripped from the land."

Little Protection Here

If 25 per cent. of the land under tree growth is a proper balance, as Mr. Wylie says, then very large sections of the Canadian west are far short of this requisite protection, for the agricultural industry and other areas, which a few years ago harbored substantial stands of trees, will fall into the same category, sooner or later, unless a sound policy of conservation reforestation is adopted. It is aptly pointed out that a tree which has taken many years to grow can be cut down in an hour or two or perhaps even in a few minutes.

Even in some sections of Ontario, regarded by westerners as a well-treed country, and at one time clad with dense forests, timber has been depleted to such an extent that less than five per cent. of the land has any scrub tree growth, with the result, to quote Mr. Wylie, "wells fail, streams dry and yachting withers when the forests have gone."

As far back as 1922, E. J. Zavitz, now Ontario's chief forester, is quoted as stating that "at the present rate of cutting the stand of pines in the Laurentians which took centuries to grow, will be exhausted within 20 to 25 years," indicative of the extent of the slaughter of these once great forest reserves."

It is important and interesting to note that not only does the absence of trees enhance drought conditions in semi-arid country but also is responsible for floods in periods of heavy rainfall. If Mr. Wylie's diagnosis is correct, and there is plenty of authority to support him.

Damage Is Result

"Where forest trees have been consumed from slopes and plains the land is left without a natural umbrella to break the force of heavy rainfall," says this author. "The downpours score the land, carrying tons of drifting muddy floods into stream beds incapable of holding the new volumes of fresh water waters the washed down soil result, the devastating floods that caused more than twenty-five million dollars in damage to homes, farms, bridges and embankments last spring."

"The Western provinces and many counties in the East are faced with the necessity for costly schemes to retard soil erosion that has reached threatening proportions. Had the western people planted forests as well as wheat, there would be no drought problem in the to-day in anything like the devastating threat that now makes the depopulation of vast reaches of western lands and the terrifically costly relief bills to be met annually."

Principles Sound

While Mr. Wylie may have exaggerated the extent of the area which may have to be depopulated, nevertheless his view of the underlying principles of the value of conservation of forest resources and reforestation is as sound in Western Canada as in the east and his plea for vigorous reforestation in the interests of the future of the principal industry of the prairies.

There are other arguments in support of a progressive policy of reforestation and conservation, as for instance the effect of denudation of trees on the wild game and fish resources of the country and the aesthetic value of trees which could well be expended were space available.

An Altitude Record

Free balloons from U.S. Weather Bureau Aerial 92,000 feet.

Altitude record for free balloons was established at Boston recently when the United States Weather Bureau had one of its radio balloons sent up from the airport to record temperature in the upper air. An altitude record of 92,000 feet, at approximately 15 1/2 miles, was established. The temperature recorded was 59 degrees below zero.

Still A Stradivarius

Product Of The Genius Of The Master Has A History

The tributes paid to Antonius Stradivarius on the 200th anniversary of his death last year gave added interest to whatever concerns the great maker of stringed instruments and the product of his genius; a violoncello from his hands is to be offered at auction in England next month and the extraordinary hazards it has survived testify to the astounding potency of the master's work.

The description of the instrument given by the London press, apparently from accepted records, is: "The back and sides of the violoncello are of poplar, the table of pine of fine, even grain, with a handsome scroll." It was taken to Paris by Tarlo, the discoverer of "Le Messie" Stradivarius, who sold it to J. B. Vuillaume, a well-known violin maker, and "being of large dimensions was reduced in size" by him. It then was bought by Mme. De Sampigny of Tours for her son, on whose death it was sold to Mr. Wimpfen, a banker who collected rare violins. Mr. Wimpfen sold it to Gustav Bernadel. Bernadel had the instrument "skillfully repaired and enlarged by one of the most famous violin restorers" and sold it to J. Hegar of Frankfurt, from whom it was bought by the owner on whose behalf it is now to be sold.

The persistence of the virtues implanted by Stradivarius in the instruments he wrought could not be better illustrated than the continuing value of this violoncello, which has once been reduced in size and once enlarged. It is to be hoped that its next possessor will not feel change in its dimensions necessary, for the spirit with which its creator animated it must have been plucked by the amendment of the quarters provided for it. #### Collected Their Wages

Two Men Wait Sixteen Years Before Asking For Pay

It's rare when a man waits sixteen years to ask for his pay and it probably is rarer when he collects it after that long a delay.

Joseph and James McBride, brothers now living in Ellwood City, Pa., have done just that.

Back in 1922, they lived in Power Point, Columbia County, and worked a half day at the Mullins Manufacturing Corp. plant in Salem, Ohio. Recently, Andrew MacLeod, secretary-treasurer of the corporation, received a letter from the boys. They said they had worked a half day—"we believe, in 1920 or 1921, we're not sure"—and explained that they did not ask for their pay then because that they needed it now badly.

MacLeod dug into the records, found the men had worked a half day April 5, 1922, and sent checks for their wages.

Canadian Farm Loan Board

Report Shows Advance To Provinces Was $4,592,863 In 10 Months.

From April 1 last year to January of this year the Canadian Farm Loan Board advanced $4,592,863 to the various provinces, according to a return tabled in the House of Commons. This represented 61 loans, out of 172 applications.

The disbursements as to provinces follow: Prince Edward Island, $21,827; Nova Scotia, $187,261; New Brunswick, $58,314; Quebec, $1,294,076; Ontario, $763,714; Manitoba, $469,236; Saskatchewan, $1,079,058; Alberta, $543,100, and British Columbia, $126,267.

Harbor No Ill-Will

People In Different Provinces Likely Want Unity For Canada

Unless a larger spirit of goodwill is built up between the provinces of Canada, this Dominion is certain to face troubled times. It should not be difficult for any provincial government to achieve at least a measure of understanding of the viewpoints and problems of other provinces. After all, it is very doubtful if any of the people of any province, as individuals, harbor ill-will toward the fellow Canadians who happen to live in other parts of the Dominion. Edmonton Journal.

Shows Alarming Decline

Small Consumption Of Eggs In Canada Is Ruining Poultry Industry

Startling figures are presented by Fred W. Beeson, Editor of Canada Poultryman, Vancouver, in signed editorial, showing an enormous annual loss to the industry. He draws pointed and very timely attention to an alarming condition in one of Canada's major industries, an industry valued at more than $100,000,000 annually, suffering the tremendous drop in domestic consumption of one billion eggs annually. The question is asked poultrymen, "what are we going to do to meet the competition of breakfast foods, vegetable and fruit juices which are daily pushing the egg off the dining tables of the Dominion?"

Figures from the Dominion Bureau of Statistics show the steady decline in egg consumption during the last ten years. Whereas the per capita consumption in 1927 was 356 eggs, it is today down to 266 eggs, a decline of exactly eight dozen for every man, woman and child in Canada.

A petition is being signed by the Hon. James G. Gardiner, Dominion Minister of Agriculture, to secure an appropriation of $100,000 for the purpose of conducting a national advertising campaign, similar to that now in effect for the Fishery industry sponsored by the Department of Fisheries.

It is pointed out that many thousands of families are wholly dependent on egg production for a livelihood as well as thousands more employed in the distribution of poultry products. Besides these there are tens of thousands of farmers who rely on egg money to buy their groceries, clothe the children and pay taxes. Also large sums are lost to Canadian feed supply and equipment houses through smaller flocks and lowered gross production.

Would Help Industry

If Women Demanded Goods Purchased Be Made In Canada

Women, it has often been said, could rule the nation if they would take an interest in the affairs of the country and organize. Similarly the control of women could be advantageously exercised in other ways, in the purchase of Canadian-made goods, for instance.

The women of Canada control 87 per cent. of the purchases made in the Dominion, either directly or indirectly, and thus they exercise a potent influence on employment conditions.

What a boon to industry if women would but demand that the goods they purchase be made in Canada. The wheels of factories would soon be humming at peak production to meet the requirements if the housewives would only decline to purchase goods made outside of Canada.

It is, perhaps, too much to suggest that women purchase Canadian-made goods for patriotic reasons alone, but by so doing they ensure work for their husbands, their brothers and friends and prosperity to the nation, then the idea should not be too idealistic. At any rate, it is something worthy of thought—St. Catharines Standard.

When Experts Disagree

Sir Hugh Bell says the best way to spend money now is to save it, while Prof. J. N. Keynes, another English authority, declares, "When ever you save five shillings you put off the work for a day. Slowly but surely we're coming to the belief that the experts don't know a danged bit more about it than the rest of us"—Windsor Star.

Sharp Youngster—"Can you tell me where all the pins go to?"

Another Sharper Youngster—"Well, it's hard to say. You see they're pointed in one direction and headed in another."

British engineers find that colored roads can be seen more clearly at night, particularly such colors as a golden yellow, dull orange and brick red.

Young students should be informed early that the verse Ezra 8:21 in the Bible contains all the letters of the alphabet except J, which originally was the same letter as I.

Entitled To The Best

Under British System Sickness Insurance Patients Receive Every Attention

Sickness insurance is not feasible politics in Canada just now, although the question of unemployment insurance is much to the fore. These two systems are complementary in the British Isles. In various parts of Canada and the United States voluntary organizations have been formed to give hospitalization for small weekly or monthly payments to their members.

Some people object to sickness insurance because they believe the injured person will not get the best attention. Under the British system, doctors who wish to accept insured workers have to see many people on their "panel," and they receive cheques every quarter, so much per capita, whether they have attended any of those people or not. At times they may have to give a great deal of service; at other times very little.

The insured person, however, is entitled to the best the doctor has to offer. The medicine is paid for by the Government. A Ministry of Health official recently revealed that a young woman in London who is a patient, is receiving daily injections of a drug gland without which she could not live. The treatment costs $1,200 a year. She may live another 50 years and the treatment must go on all her life. In that time the drug will cost $60,000. The cost to her is only a few dollars a year.

The Ministry of Health does not challenge prescription expenses unless they seem wantonly extravagant, and no doctor who values his job would submit such accounts. St. Thomas Times-Journal.

Scotland Preparing Great Welcome For Visitors To Exhibition

Scotland is preparing one of its greatest welcomes for the thousands of its people and the travelers who will flock to Glasgow this summer for the Scottish Empire Exhibition. Opening May 1 and continuing through October, this $50,000,000 exhibit will be one of the premier tourist attractions of Europe this year and will act as a magnet to draw loyal Scots home from every corner of the globe.

"Already 80,000 season tickets for the Exhibition have been sold to the people of Scotland alone," says Douglas Malcolm of the American Travel Service, who predicts that between 15,000,000 and 20,000,000 people will visit the display this summer.

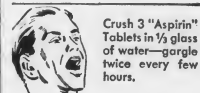

A 300-foot observation tower, accommodating over 600 people at a time, will mark the centre of the Exhibition grounds. It will stand on a hill rising 170 feet and will dominate an illuminated look. On a clear day visitors to the tower will be able to see nearly half of Scotland.

The buildings for the Exhibition are now complete, and hundreds of men are busy putting the finishing touches on the interiors. King George VI. will open the exhibition.

Apples, pears, peaches, and loganberries are the chief fruits exported from Canada, the United Kingdom taking about 60 per cent.

SORE THROAT WITH COLDS Given Fast Relief

Take 2 "Aspirin" Tablets with a full glass of water.

The speed with which "Aspirin" tablets act in relieving the distressing symptoms of colds and accompanying sore throat is utterly amazing... and the treatment is simple and pleasant. This is all you do. Crush and dissolve three "Aspirin" tablets in one-third glass of water. Then gargle with this mixture twice, holding your head well back.

This medicinal gargle will act almost like a local anesthetic on the sore, irritated membrane of your throat. Pains cease promptly; rawness is relieved.

"Aspirin" tablets are made in Canada. "Aspirin" is the registered trade-mark of the Bayer Company, Limited, of Windsor, Ontario. Look for the name Bayer in the form of a cross on every tablet.

Western Poet Dies

W. C. Sanderecock, Saskatchewan School Teacher, Published collection Of Poems

One of Saskatchewan's better known poets and a teacher in schools of this province for nearly 25 years, W. Clark Sanderecock of Pathlow, Sask., died in a Saskatoon hospital recently. Mr. Sanderecock's principal collection of poems was printed in 1935 under the title "The Dance in the Buffalo Skull."

Mr. Sanderecock had hundreds of friends throughout the province but few knew that he was ill in hospital before his death.

Mr. Sanderecock was born in Lonsdale, Ontario. He came to Western Canada in 1880 with his parents who settled at Pilot Mound, Manitoba.

Mr. Sanderecock is survived by his widow and two daughters.

Parades In London In Opposition To British Foreign Policy

London.—Ten thousand demonstrators marched on the Italian embassy, bearing a resolution condemning what was termed Prime Minister Chamberlain's "surrendering to Italian threats."

The throng was halted short of the embassy by a wall of mounted police and but two of the number were permitted to approach the entrance.

The two men rang Count Dino Grandi's doorbell but there was no response. So they slipped the resolution under the door and marched back to join their cheering comrades.

Opposition speakers throughout the country meanwhile demanded a general election to test whether the electorate was back of Mr. Chamberlain's policy of negotiation with Italy and Germany toward general European friendship.

The London Communist party organized a mass demonstration in Trafalgar Square. From there the Communists and sympathizers wended their way to the edge of Grosvenor Square to deliver their resolution to Ambassador Grandi.

The resolution declared the policy of "assisting Fascist aggression would not be tolerated." It also condemned "Italian intervention in Spain."

Lord Strabolgi, a Labor peer, addressed 2,000 persons in Hyde Park, accusing Lady Ivy Muriel Chamberlain, widow of the prime minister's brother, Sir Austen Chamberlain, and Viscountess Astor of "meddling" in foreign policy.

Lord Strabolgi, a member of an ancient Scottish family, decried Mr. Chamberlain's "lurching to the Italians" in the face of "bullying and blackmailing by Fascism."

Mr. Chamberlain last week denied in the House of Commons there was any threat in Italy's friendship overture, but Anthony Eden, who resigned as foreign secretary because of the new policy, declared Italy had said "now or never."

Lord Strabolgi said "Lady Austen Chamberlain has superseded the British ambassador."

Austrian Chancellor Says His Country To Remain Free Nation

Vienna.—Chancellor Kurt von Schuschnigg declared that Germany unmistakably had guaranteed the independence of an Austria which he definitely proclaimed "must remain Austria."

Austria was a free and independent nation, its full sovereignty recognized by Chancellor Hitler of Germany, he declared, stressing the nations right to endure as an entity guaranteed by its history, its geographical position and its spiritual faith. He rejected any idea of a Nazi empire spread across central Europe.

"For us it is not a question of National Socialism or Socialism but patriotism," Von Schuschnigg shouted to the diet he used as a sounding board to tell the world Austria still was on the European map as a free nation.

"We did not choose our borders. We did not make the map."

"But what we have are bound and determined to keep."

The packed audience in the Reichstag hall of the parliament building, stunned since the fall of the Austro-Hungarian empire of 1918, interrupted almost every sentence with frantic applause. The speech was widely broadcast.

Demonstrations organized by the Fatherland Front, Austria's only legal party, completely overshadowed any outbursts Nazis might have planned.

"The government stands firmly behind the 1931 constitution and in directing all its efforts toward Austria's freedom and independence," Von Schuschnigg said, his voice trembling with emotion.

"The constitution recognizes no parties and no party state."

It was his action to ward fear that his historic Feb. 12 meeting with Hitler had opened the way for Nazi domination of Germany's little German-speaking neighbor and eventual loss of Austrian independence in union with the reich. As a result of the meeting, Austria admitted Nazis to her cabinet and freed political prisoners.

"What we Austrians want cannot and must not be designated by political concepts of red, black, brown and green, and right and left—it is an ambassador in Rome," reviving recent rumors that she had conferred with Premier Mussolini.

"This country has not got to the position that we must have society ladies trotting about Europe in relation to foreign policy and you can understand how subject to flattery they will be in the presence of these great men, the dictators of Europe."

"The foreign policy of this country is no longer settled by the cabinet in Downing street but in the country home of Lady Astor at Cliveden."

Meanwhile Russia's plan in pending diplomatic moves was studied in diplomatic circles.

Claims Part Of Fortune

Boston Girl Says She Is Granddaughter Of Maudslayi Magnate
Boston.—A pretty Boston University freshman, Miss Olga Kuzmichna Zaharoff, 19, disclosed a claim to half the vast fortune left by Sir Basil Zaharoff, mysterious munitions magnate. Miss Zaharoff, who said she is a grandniece, said Sir Basil left his wealth to her and her sister in a will which has since vanished. She added Sir Basil once said his estate was worth at least $500,000,000.

Money For Chinese Stolen

Jar In Post Office At Moose Jaw Emptied By Thief
Moose Jaw.—About $2 in one, five and ten-cent pieces, which the Moose Jaw Chinese were gathering for the Chinese Red Cross, was stolen from a jar in the post office.

The jar, which was locked to the stamp wicket, was emptied and the money taken. It was one of several containers which had been left in Moose Jaw business places to gather money in aid of the Chinese refugees.

Partition Of Ireland

Still A Stumbling Block In Anglo-Irish Negotiations
London.—Partition of Ireland still is the stumbling block to an Anglo-Irish understanding.

Prime Ministers Chamberlain and De Valera re-stated their positions in an hour-long meeting as negotiations to settle outstanding problems resumed.

Delegations apparently failed to find a solution to the problem. There were no indications of concessions by either side to smooth a path to agreement.

A 90-minute meeting of the full delegations followed, at which partition, finance, trade and defence all were discussed.

Sir Samuel Hoare, home secretary, Malcolm MacDonald, Dominion secretary and Sir Thomas Inskip, minister for defence co-ordination, attended, with Mr. Chamberlain, while Mr. de Valera, Sean Lemass, industry minister; James Ryan, agriculture minister, and J. W. Dulaney, high commissioner, attended for Eire. Mr. de Valera and Mr. Dulaney remained with Mr. Chamberlain after other conferences left.

Trade matters were discussed at a later meeting attended by W. S. Morrison, agriculture minister, Mr. Ryan, Mr. Lemass and Mr. Dulaney. Board of trade officials represented Oliver Stanley, president of the board of trade, who is still.

B.C. Boundary Extension

No Negotiations With Ottawa In This Matter It Is Stated
Ottawa.—There have been no negotiations with the British Columbia government to extend the eastern boundary of the province in the north, taking in the Mackenzie river district, Hon. T. A. Cregar, resources minister, announced in the House of Commons.

Questioned by Howard Green (Cons., Vancouver South), the minister said he was aware Premier Pattullo of British Columbia had announced he would negotiate with Ottawa over the extension of the boundary but there had been no negotiations with "his department."

There had been negotiations between the Dominion and provincial governments over British Columbia taking over the Yukon. Mr. Cregar continued, but nothing had been said about the boundary extension.

Canadian Mine Sweepers

Four Vessels Now Under Construction Have Been Named
Ottawa.—The four mine sweepers commissioned by the department of national defence and now under construction in British Columbia, Ontario and Quebec shipyards, have been named Nootka, Comox, Pundy and Gaspe, the department announced.

The ships will be used for training of permanent forces and reserve naval personnel and for mine sweeping and mine laying training duty. Each will be 150 feet in length and equipped with 950-horsepower engines.

Implement Exports

Ottawa.—Canada's January export of farm implements and machinery at $707,696 showed an increase of $251,145 over the same month last year, the Dominion bureau of statistics reported. The United States took $284,371 worth, the United Kingdom $196,814 and Argentina $130,500.

Russian Army Purge

Two Soviet Navy Officers Have Been Executed
Moscow.—Soviet Russia's red army celebrated its 20th anniversary in a blaze of martial spirit, accompanied by disclosure that purges had made further inroads among its officers.

A new vice-commissioner of defence appeared in the person of General Ivan Fokko, former chief of staff in the Far East, who more recently was commander of the Kiev military district.

It was learned he has replaced A. I. Yegoroff, who succeeded Marshal Mikhail N. Tukachevsky as vice-commissioner when the latter was executed along with a group of other allegedly disloyal officers.

Secret execution of two former commanders of the Soviet navy was disclosed in published versions of a speech by Commissar of War Kliment E. Voroshilov. The two were Admiral Vladimir R. Orloff and Admiral A. K. Sivkov. They, too, were called traitors.

Japanese Penetration

Claim Japanese Merchants Being Financed In Vancouver
Vancouver.—Alderman H. D. Wilson said he was investigating reports that Japanese merchants were being financed by Japanese capital.

"I have reason to believe there is a steady stream of capital coming from Japan for this purpose," he said. "I think the city should know Japanese merchants are being subsidised here. Possibly they are mushrooming throughout British Columbia in the same way."

Some of Vancouver's most valuable commercial property was being taken up by Japanese, he said, and "some drastic action must be taken in Vancouver to make Ottawa realize we are facing a real situation."

Alderman Wilson recommended before the city council that trade licenses be issued to Orientals only when they intended to do business in sections of the city where Orientals predominated.

B.B.C. Deletes Criticisms

London.—Colonel Josiah Wedgwood, Labor member of parliament, was banned from the air by the British Broadcasting Corporation when he refused to delete criticism of Adolf Hitler and Benito Mussolini in a debate on "The Way to Peace."

Anthony Eden Says New Foreign Policy Of Britain Will Fail

Leamington, Eng.—Anthony Eden told his constituents he firmly believed Prime Minister Chamberlain's new foreign policy will fail to contribute to European appeasement, and declared "it is with the great democracies of Europe and America that our natural affinities lie."

He had no other course but to resign as foreign minister when he disagreed with his colleagues over immediate gestures of conciliation toward Italy, he said.

Mr. Eden reiterated his belief "the meaning of certain communications received from a foreign government was 'now or never'... and I have never varied that opinion since." Mr. Chamberlain has denied Italy's communications in regard to the opening of negotiations had been threatening, as Mr. Eden insisted.

There was one point he had to deal with, said Mr. Eden, "for I have been challenged upon it."

In the House of Commons he stated: "It is seldom right to depart from the traditional method of diplomacy which has been tested by time and experience. It is certainly never right to do so because one party to the negotiations intimates that it is now or never. Agreements that are worthwhile are never made on the basis of threat."

"I would stand by every word I said in the House of Commons."

"I finally formed the opinion that the meaning of certain communications received from a foreign government was 'now or never'... and that those communications read in the context of recent history were open to no other interpretation than that which I placed on them. I made my view plain to my colleagues at the time and I have never varied it since."

"My colleagues, however, took a different view. It may be suggested that I should press them on this point, which is an important issue of interpretation dividing us. But this I am not prepared to do, for I do not believe it to be in the national interest. I appreciate that it is impossible to make public relevant documents at this moment. I am content to wait and accept the verdict of history."

But if any hopes were held he would join in the opposition attacks on the government he quickly ended them when he appealed for national unity and declared:

"The government have embarked on their course."

"They have decided to employ a certain approach to Anglo-Italian friendship. The decision has been made. Parliament has endorsed it."

"Very well. The government must then go ahead on the course which they have chosen and neither by word nor deed do I desire now to say anything to make their task more difficult."

"On the contrary I most sincerely wish them success in their endeavors."

He again voiced the belief he expressed in the House of Commons—that his policy of standing firm against dictators would obtain results "if they were to be obtained, without the risks attendant on the present course."

The clux of his break with the prime minister on seeking Italian friendship he gave as:

"Is it to be an agreement, when you can get it, negotiated on a solid basis—or is it to be an agreement, if you can get it, regardless of the basis?"

Mr. Eden quickly dealt with suggestions he said had been made that he had suffered from the strain of office and that "I have taken a step which had I been in better health, I should not have entertained."

"You can judge for yourselves whether I look like a sick man," he said. "You shall be my witness that there is no shred of truth in that suggestion."

The decision I took was taken not of course, because I was tired, but because of a conviction, which nothing that has occurred since has caused me to modify, that no other course was open to me."

"Tonight, nearly a week afterwards, I can say to you with absolute sincerity that, looking back upon that decision, I am more than ever convinced it was right."

"I should be despising myself if this evening had I taken any other course."

He paid tribute to Viscount Cranborne who retired as foreign undersecretary with him. "I can never adequately express what his conduct, his patience, his courage, his unswerving sense of duty, have meant to me," he said, adding the prediction that "Lord Cranborne is destined to play a larger part in national affairs in the years that lie ahead."

Regular Flights Over Western Air Lines To Commence Soon

Ottawa. Regular flights over the Trans-Canada Air Lines from Winnipeg to Vancouver will start about March 1 and from Montreal to Vancouver about July 1. Hon. C. D. Howe, minister of transport, told the House of Commons.

Within a year a coast-to-coast service from Montreal to Vancouver would be operating.

On the first flights from Winnipeg west mail would be carried but no passengers. A little later in the spring passengers would be carried.

The section east of Winnipeg would be flown at night and lights were now being installed. When work was completed planes would leave Montreal about 8 o'clock in the evening and reach Vancouver at noon the next day.

From Montreal the route will run to Ottawa and then to Toronto. From Toronto it will swing north to North Bay and thence westward. Later, when traffic increases, probably two machines will be operated each day, one starting at Toronto and one at Montreal.

Maritime province members objected to the plans for service for the maritime provinces. Mr. Howe explained the route to the east would run from Montreal, within a few miles of Sharnbrook and across the state of Maine to a point in New Brunswick about halfway between Saint John and Fredericton and across to Moncton which would likely be the eastern terminus.

It was the intention of the government to invite private enterprise to co-operate in establishing services connecting Moncton with the principal cities of the maritimes, such as Halifax, Saint John and Sydney. There was already a service between Moncton and Charlottetown.

Robert Finn (Lib., Halifax), declared the people of the maritimes were entitled to as good planes serving all centres as were flown anywhere on the Trans-Canada route.

Mr. Howe replied that in 10 months or two years he was sure all maritime cities would be served by lines with equipment fully adequate for the traffic.

In reply to questions, Mr. Howe said wherever feeder lines could be developed economically by private enterprise the post office department would award mail contracts.

Mr. Howe was optimistic about the prospects of trans-Atlantic flying. Latest word from England was that mail would be carried on the trans-Atlantic route within the present year. He expected plans would fly the Atlantic twice a week each way and that flying time between Montreal and Southampton would be about 24 hours.

The usual rate for air travel was six cents a mile, the minister told the house but no rates had been set for the Trans-Canada line. It would be some time before passenger rates were carried and rates could be set meanwhile.

The service from Vancouver to Winnipeg is "pretty well completed," Mr. Howe said, and the jump from Montreal to the maritimes will be pushed ahead as soon as weather permits in the spring.

The trans-Canada, Mr. Howe said, will have a through service from Vancouver to Montreal with only one feeder, from Lethbridge to Edmonton. Tenders for air mail services connecting the main line with Saskatchewan are being called now.

(The Dominion will reimburse cities for one-third of the money they spend on airports or one-quarter of the cost of new fields.)

NOTES AND COMMENTS

COLEMAN Board of Trade isn't dead. Occasionally it gives a sign of life. Last Friday the annual meeting and banquet of Lethbridge Board of Trade was held in the Marquis hotel. From the Pass two representatives responded to the invitation; the writer and Maurice W. Cooke. The reason they went, primarily, was to let Lethbridge know that there is still a spark of life left in boards of trade in the Crows Nest Pass.

THE GUEST speaker, Mr. C. E. Stockdill, assistant to the vice-president of the C.P.R. in Winnipeg, who is also president of Winnipeg Board of Trade for a second term, is a busy man, yet he makes time to engage in community activities in the Manitoba capital, and on Sundays he teaches a large Bible class. Rev. Tom Frears, a Lethbridge minister, who introduced Mr. Stockdill to the gathering, stated that as a boy in Winnipeg, Mr. Stockdill was his source of inspiration which resulted in his entering the ministry. This is quite a contrast to the popular conception of the hard-boiled railroad man.

SO EFFUSIVE was Mr. Frear in his eulogy of Mr. Stockdill, that the gentleman must have blushed on having his virtues paraded and laid bare before the curious crowd assembled from all parts of the Lethbridge district. In opening his address, he stated that he really wondered if it was himself that Mr. Frear was introducing. He felt much like a widow at the funeral service of her husband. The minister lauded the dead man to such an extent that she turned to her daughter, and whispered: "You had better take a look in the coffin and see if it is really father." Mr. Stockdill doesn't drink; he doesn't smoke, and we presume doesn't tell the kind of stories that railroad men [and others] usually enjoy telling. He has strong convictions respecting his duties as a citizen, and stands solidly behind them. Such a nature is a kind of moral and spiritual tonic to those who are accustomed to regard business men as out solely for the almighty dollar and "let the other fellow take care of himself."

TO GET back to Boards of Trade. Mr. Stockdill pointed out that it was those towns and cities which had energetic groups functioning for the general good that showed most progress. It brought home to the writer's mind that in the Pass towns efforts along these lines meet with very little response, and so little encouragement is accorded those who do strive that they eventually become weary of well-doing.

HERE IS an instance! A few years ago efforts were made to hold monthly luncheon meetings, to last one hour, when business men could meet, and even if there wasn't much business to discuss, they could at least engender some friendly feeling towards each other, and thereby develop the co-operative spirit so vitally necessary to progress. At the first meeting about forty were there. The next meeting dropped to fourteen. Those who stayed away had various excuses. They wanted to eat at home; they wanted to play golf; they had to do something at the store. "They one and all began to make excuses." So the luncheon meetings petered out, and there hasn't been a meeting since, neither has there been any contribution in annual fees, because nobody cared. It is that spirit which spreads a grave-like pall over a town. Its a dull drab picture, yet one has to admit its true. If this town or any other town in the Pass wants a board of trade, then it is the business men who must get behind it and show by leadership that they are deserving of the support and confidence of the people in their respective lines of trade or business. "As ye sow, so shall ye reap," and the community in which we live and do business can be likened unto a garden. If we do not cultivate goodwill and co-operation then we must take the consequences.

EVEN with a board of trade such as that of Lethbridge, all is not easy sailing. The financial report showed an overdraft of $5,000. Its credit must be good to be allowed credit to that extent, but as the retiring president, Waldo Green, way pointed out, business men of Lethbridge would have to pay up if they wished the board to continue efficiently. Possibly that is the reason a banker was elected as the new president. He will likely see that the overdraft is reduced and eventually wiped out.

LETHBRIDGE has undoubtedly been developed largely through the enterprise of its business men acting co-operatively. Good things in cities, as well as in individual lives, usually come to those who work for them, and smaller towns such as Coleman must do the same if they wish to get out of the rut that will eventually become so deep it will be a grave of blasted hopes. It is entirely up to every business man to do more than just stand behind a counter and wait for business, and he who does not realize that he has a greater responsibility than just doing a routine job in a mechanical way each day will eventually be forced into the background by those who have greater vision and ambition.

JOURNAL ADVERTISING

GOODWILL

The merchant who takes pride in his advertising, who values good typographical appearance and customer appeal, will see that every week the HOMETOWN paper carries an advertising message. To meet keen competition from all sources, including mail order advertising through catalogues, which are handsomely illustrated and widely read, the best method to interest the hometown people is to use advertising space with proper display giving information on the goods offered in local stores. Business goes to those who make the real effort to secure it, and the most effective medium is The Coleman Journal.

The EQUIVALENT OF CASH

WHEN you make purchases locally you pay for them either by cheque or with bank bills which are accepted at face value.

When you have payments to make at distant points use the Money Orders sold by this Bank. They are just as acceptable in the faraway places of the world as bank bills are in your own neighbourhood.

Our money orders ensure the safe transmission of your funds.

THE CANADIAN BANK OF COMMERCE

Mr. W. L. Rippon, Manager of the Coleman Branch, will be glad to have you call and discuss any matter in which the Bank can help you.

CANADA'S CHARTERED BANKS VALUE YOUR GOODWILL

WHETHER you deal with a bank or whether you don't, some time soon—say the very next time you are passing the bank's door—why not drop in and get acquainted? You're sure of a welcome, because the bank manager wants to know you. So find out for yourself what kind of fellow he is. And before you leave, take a good look at his staff.

The head offices are manned and managed by just that sort of man! Every general manager in Canada started in the banking business as a junior in some small branch, and rose from the ranks.

(This is your introduction to a series of chats in the course of which you will be supplied at home with a little of mystery and how much of service there is in the business of banking in Canada.)

Canada's chartered banks want your goodwill.

It is only by goodwill that banks make a living—and bankers are your fellow-citizens, the same sort of people as you are.

Of course bankers have heard all the old, threadbare jokes about the banker's glass eye, his delight in humiliating worthy souls who ask for loans—even that grand old chestnut about lending the umbrella when the sun is shining and taking it back when it rains.

So if you think you have a new joke, drop in and spring it on your local bank manager—he'll appreciate it. And if it turns out he's heard it before, he'll still have his sense of humour handy enough to get a chuckle, should you chance to tell him that the banks are being held responsible for the latest storms, or for the loss of the hockey game, or for his own neglect to summon property from just around the corner.

Which should prove to you that your banker is, after all, a very human person. He likes people. All bankers like people. And they want people to like them.

Banks want to be helpful. They realize that they succeed only as the people of the community succeed. Enlightened self-interest? Well yes—but not altogether.

Your local manager will tell you that banks are not stiff-necked; that they do not enjoy refusing loans.

They'd be foolish if they did, for goodwill is the whole core and pith and substance of successful banking.

Use your bank! Get to know the manager. If you know him already, he'd like to know you better.

Talk things over with him. Consult him. He'll be glad to advise you on anything within the scope of his banking knowledge and authority.

He is a part of his community. More than that, he is a good citizen, because he is anxious to be helpful to the fellow-citizens in every permissible way.

You have all sorts of interests in common. Because of the taxes you both pay, you are really business partners in the community.

Then why shouldn't you know each other, understand each other, better?

He knows that his success as a bank manager depends first upon making himself useful to people, and then upon his ability to get along with them. His whole future is wrapped up largely in those two things—and well he knows it!

A bank is in business to sell banking service where such service is needed, and where it can do the community most good. So the banker of popular jest, the cold-eyed being who can only say "No," is a man of fiction only.

As we've said before, banks want and need your goodwill. No bank can get along without it. Telling the facts is probably the best method of winning it.

Intelligent people like plain talk. So in the talks to follow we shall be frank in giving you the facts about banks, bank ownership, bank operations, cash, currency, loans and interest. We would like you to read them all.

THE CHARTERED BANKS OF CANADA

Your local branch bank manager will be glad to talk banking with you. He will be glad to answer your questions, from the standpoint of his own experience. The next article in this series will appear in this newspaper. Watch for it.

LOCAL AND GENERAL

When a storekeeper admits he has nothing worth-while advertising, it is an admission that he has nothing worth-while to interest buyers. People like stores that keep them informed, and are more likely to deal with the stores that secure their interest through well-directed advertising in The Journal.

$200 a year increase in salary and more if you're a cabinet minister, is a nice dividend. Everyone would welcome it, but it is only the chosen few who will receive it. "Generosity," says Mr. Aberhart, "is a fine quality." Sure thing, when you can do it with taxpayers' money! Not so good for the fellows who pay-pay-pay! Two months advertising at sessions of the legislature, $1,000 a month. How nice it would be if such a happy condition could be provided for "the slaves of the economic system."

There is business today, but advertising must ask for it

Steve Janostak Enroute to France

Bright and early Saturday morning Steve Janostak, Coleman's round the world traveller, left Coleman enroute to France. Steve will ride the C.P.R. "rattlers" to the Atlantic coast where he will seek a job on a boat to gain passage across the ocean.

This is not Steve's first visit to gay Paree as he toured the European continent two years ago, visiting Britain, France, Germany and other smaller countries. Last year he toured the Orient, visiting various cities in China and Japan and on one occasion had the experience of seeing several Japanese war planes swoop over the ship on which he was sailing in order to identify it.

After visiting in France, Steve intends travelling to India, one of the few countries he has not yet visited.

Slovak Society Held Pleasant Evening

The first Slovak Mutual Benefit Society held a banquet in the Catholic hall on Saturday evening. Among the speakers were Joe Mayerchak, president; Louis Bubniak, representing the national organization; John Ruzka and George Bieliah. Several members contributed to the program in musical selections and singing. The fine banquet was provided by the ladies of the society. A very enjoyable evening came to a close shortly before midnight.

Oh! Be Careful!

An interesting letter from Gunga Din of Hillcrest was published in the Calgary Herald on Friday, Feb. 25. His knowledge of English history is very good, points out a reader, but King Charles did not walk his last mile to Tower Hill to have his head lopped off. He was beheaded in Whitehall. This serves to show how careful you must be in writing letters to The Press, for you never know who may discover inaccuracies. A lady reader once pointed out to The Journal, after reading a report of an address by a local gentleman, that King John didn't sign Magna Charta, because he could not write. The longer you live, the more you learn.

Playing Marbles

A dry sandy piece of land in front of the school, immediately beneath the ground floor windows was such a fine place to play marbles that despite the protests of teachers who repeatedly came out and shooed the boys away, they would just as repeatedly return. From the office window, as disinterested spectators, The Journal staff enjoyed the contest, as it brought to mind the days "when we were young." But this would be no palliative for the teachers suffering the intrusion of boyish arguments into their classrooms. As this is written, a dozen boys are keenly engrossed in their games, but as there are no classes, they play undisturbed, as the day draws to a close.

One of our friendly readers remarked that The Journal does not always print the truth. To which the reply might be made: Who is to be the judge of what the truth really is? The truth can be so horribly distorted it is difficult to distinguish where it ends and the lie begins.

"I see by The Journal" starts many discussions every day along Main street. In the unhurried atmosphere of Coleman homes, women look for conversational topics as well as the men. Your weekly advertising in this paper might well take advantage of this opportunity for telling the people about your goods and other store news.

Local News

Wm. Gate was a business visitor at Lethbridge on Monday.

The Journal is not given away; it is appreciated to the extent of $2.00 per year.

Miss Margaret Allan visited with friends in Calgary over the week-end.

Renovation of the vacant caretaker's residence in the school yard was started by Contractor D'Appolonia on Monday.

Competition can come from without our borders to a far greater extent than most business men realize.

Carman Beck, who is attending school at Kermaria convent, Pincher Creek, spent the week-end with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. A. Beck, at Star Creek ranch.

Grace Lochrie left on Wednesday to take a course in the urban youth training school, established by the Dominion government to instruct young people in various trades and professions.

"There's a long, long trail a winding, into the land of my dreams," has been proposed as the new theme song for the pleasant Sunday afternoons at Calgary Synoptic Bible Institute.

Betty Beveridge spent the week-end in Calgary visiting her old school friends, Helen Dibble and Gwen Dunlop. "Just a nice little change," remarked Betty, as she boarded the train. And her friends would enjoy the visit equally as well.

A Harper, manager of Lethbridge branch of Remington-Rand Limited, who recently made a trip along the Crow line as far as Creston, reports a number of sales of the famous Remington typewriters, several sales having been made in Coleman.

People are impressed most favorably with newspaper advertising, typographically displayed so that it commands their attention. The Journal advertising is the most efficient form of advertising to develop sales. Large national advertisers know from experience the value of advertising in Canada's weekly newspapers, of which there are over 500 doing a good job for their respective communities.

Cameron McIntosh, editor of the North Battleford (weekly) News, and Federal member of parliament, has for years brought forward a motion for the adoption of a national flag for Canada. At last his efforts appear about to be rewarded, for a house committee is to bring in a report as to the design to be adopted. Most people will agree with the proposal. It is likely the Union Jack and the Maple Leaf will be embodied in the new flag.

Things that are given away have very little merit. That is why so many circulars and miscellaneous forms of advertising are noticed thrown on the street or dropped on post-office floors. Not so with the hometown newspaper, for every member of the family eagerly looks for its weekly visit. Billy Naylor, Dino DeMartin or John Lant will deliver copies to your home on their regular rounds if you are not at present a regular subscriber. Extra copies may be purchased at McBurney's drug store or the Palm Confectionery.

Prospective buyers are impressed with advertising which creates confidence, and which appears in the Hometown paper. Nothing can equal it for efficiency in creating sales confidence and goodwill. An ad in The Journal always looks good and indicates enterprise and a progressive spirit on the part of the advertiser. National advertisers are using the Hometown weekly newspapers more than ever in their campaigns, and they do it not because of sentiment but because they have found it really pays.

MISCELLANEOUS

The stupidity of would-be criminals and thieves is at times illustrated in an amusing manner. Last week at High River a house of a former resident of Coleman, was broken into. The thief broke or cut away some glass to enter, when a skeleton key would have opened the entrance door. The house was unoccupied when the theft was made, the owner being here on a visit.

The death of Balto, by the hand of an unknown, on the morning of Feb. 10, has stirred a letter written to the town council and read at Tuesday night's meeting. The police received instructions to investigate. Balto's memory is enshrined in the hearts of the boys whom he used to accompany on their explorations in the mountains.

Stewart Milley has been laid off work for over a month with an injury to his hand received in the mine.

"Odds and Ends"

Loud attire naturally speaks for itself.

The proper time to do a thing is when it should be done.
Some say that whipping a boy makes him stupid—others that it makes him smart.

"Revenge has ears more deaf than adders, to the voice of any true decision."—Shakespeare.

People who are never in a hurry to begin believe in the theory that it is never too late to mend.

Every man should keep a fair-sized cemetery in which to bury the faults of his friends.—Henry Ward Beecher.

What of the People?

"If the main part of our constructive genius is to be centered upon the gadgets of the day and not upon the generation of tomorrow, then we shall fail."—Dr. Edward C. Elliott.

Enough

That happy state of mind, so rarely possessed, in which we can say, "I have enough," is the highest attainment of philosophy. Happiness consists, not in possessing much, but in being content with what we possess. He who wants little always has enough.—Zimmerman.

IMPROVING OIL PRODUCTS

The world is rapidly turning to chemistry to find ways and means for improving the products of its industries, and petroleum chemistry is playing an increasingly important part in that program.

The work being undertaken by petroleum chemists may be divided into two major classifications, one the use of chemistry to improve the characteristics of oil products such as motor fuels and lubricants; and the other the application of chemistry to convert petroleum fractions into products of industry such as synthetic alcohols, resins, and solvents.

The former classification represents chemistry's contribution to the world in making one barrel of crude oil do what two barrels was required to do only 20 years ago.

In this respect oil chemistry may be said to have saved 12 billion barrels of crude oil. —B-35.
